FINAL

My vision as a photographer is simplicity. When I see objects of people I want to photograph I often view them in a simplistic way. Simple designs within a photograph or a simple looking back ground for portraits often catch my eye. I don't seek out simple looking things to photograph but rather it just turns up in my photographs that I naturally have an eye for simple objects.

My goal in my photographs is mainly to get my audience to look at objects or people in a different perspective. As humans we often by pass little detail in our everyday lives. So I feel it is my goal in my photography to take photos of everyday things that we often misinterpret. My passion is to shooting car photography, but I not yet have learned the techniques of it. As of right now I mainly shoot simple objects, people, or animals and landscape. In my photographs, I hope that my audience now view details in a different way.
