Using cameras to create pictures to capture the world around us. This is why I think we should become educated in digital photography. Our children and our children's children will look at the pictures that we have taken. I think that it is important to be able to show them what the world looked like when we were living in it. What fashions were in style or how we felt or what the land once looked like. When we take these pictures they can be inspirational or motivational, which may one day move them to take pictures of the world they live in, and the legends go on. I enjoy taking pictures of the land and things that it gives us, but currently I have started to enjoy taking pictures of people. I think it is important to capture people's emotions and what they once looked like so that maybe when they are old they can look back on themselves and find joy in the photo.

In the future I hope to open a book or a magazine and find pictures that the current generation is taking at the time. I hope that they are showing what kind of world they live in and that will make me connect to them. I think that photos should do this. They should show the person who you are and where you come from to give the "reader" a better idea of what the photographer is all about and who they are just threw one picture on a page. In this idea, it is amazing to think about how you can see some one or something by just looking at a two-dimensional object on a page. This is what I want my photography to do someday. I hope to inspire, and give someone a person connection to me. Show them who I really am just through one photo. This is what I hope photography will always be.
